A PATRIOTIC SPEECH.

Among the recent speeches at the State Convention of Democratic Clubs that of Mr. E. O. Beddingfield, Secretary of the State Farmers' Alliance, will not be soon forgotten. It was a strong, earnest and convincing plea to the white men of North Carolina to present an unbroken front in order to preserve their liberties. He scorned the intimation that the Farmers' Alliance, even in an indirect way, would be responsible for the defeat of the Democratic party, and he showed that the relief needed by the farmers could be gained in the Democratic party. He did not believe that the Democratic party had always lived up to its principles, but he did know that its principles, if carried out, would bring relief to the farmers and all others. So strongly did he believe in the Democratic principles that he said, though of Whig parentage, if his father had lived and the old parties had remained, his convictions would have caused him to differ with his father and join his fortunes to the cause of Democracy.

His remarks upon the necessity of settling all differences in the Democratic party at the primaries, and then supporting and electing the nominees, whether personally acceptable or not, were apt, telling and to the point. He pointed out that the real fight was in the primaries in North Carolina. At the polls there can be no division among white men so long as the great negro column stands unbroken and compact. To divide, is to give control to the negro party.

He emphasized his position along this line and was loudly cheered and applauded. But valuable and important and patriotic as his utterances were in favor of white supremacy and the need of a thorough organization, the part of his speech to which we desire to call particular attention, and to commend, is that in which he said that there was no desire upon the part of the Alliance anywhere to antagonize men because of their profession or calling. The Alliance has loftier aims and holier purposes, and he believed that three-fourths of the Democrats in North Carolina who did not belong to the Alliance were in earnest and hearty accord with the Alliance in the great fight it is making for financial and other reforms. So far from desiring to antagonize them, said Mr. Beddingfield, the members of the Alliance extend to them their grateful thanks and high appreciation for the noble efforts they are making to advance the cause of equal justice. We shall not trust ourselves to quote his just and proper tribute to the great army of professional and business men in North Carolina who are laboring to secure the same end that the Alliance has in view. Nor is it necessary. Happy as his words were, it is the sentiment that we desire to emphasize. In thus paying a deserved tribute to the men who, though not eligible to membership in the order, are doing much to carry out the fundamental principles of the Alliance and Democracy (for they are the same), Mr. Beddingfield gave expression to the sentiment of every patriotic member of the Alliance.

There is no feeling among the patriotic Alliamcemen against a man because of his profession or calling. Whatever has seemed like it has been a temporary ebullition, and cannot last; and it has been caused by incorrect information and hasty action. It is no more a part of the Alliance than a tar-barrel is a part of Democratic principles. It is a flame which quickly burns out. The real position of the Alliance is one of antagonism and hatred of evil conditions and unjust laws and men who are responsible for them, and not of distrust or hatred of a class. If a farmer seeks to perpetuate the evils under which they suffer, they are as much his enemy as if he were a lawyer or a doctor or a banker. The Alliance looks beyond a man's profession into his principles and his acts. They are the tests. Whenever any of its members have failed to do this, and have opposed a man because of his profession they have gone contrary to their confessed aims and been guilty of injustice. In a speech, accepting the nomination, made by Dr. H. F. Freeman, a prominent Alliamceman of Wilson county, who was nominated by the Democrats for the State Senate on Tuesday, he gave expression to this same view when he said that "a man should be supported, not because of the class to which he belonged or the profession he might follow, but for the principles he advocated."

The CHRONICLE would lay stress upon these utterances, because there are good and true men in the State who have a deep prejudice against the Alliance because they believe it intends to ostracize all except farmers, and because some extreme Alliamcemen have given expression to sentiments which were calculated to arouse prejudice upon the part of all who did not belong to the Alliance. We have never believed that the extremists who would crucify all who do not follow in their way, spoke for the Alliance. We have known that they simply represented their own narrow and illiberal views. But all have not known this, and these loud talkers have inflicted great injury upon the Alliance by their mouthings. It is well that in a manly, patriotic and liberal manner Mr. Beddingfield has stated the true position of the Alliance, and administered a rebuke to those who have misrepresented the order. His words will do good—bring about more cordial and friendly feelings—and promote harmony and concord.

HOW GAP CIVIL GOT ITS NAME.

[Statesville Landmark.]

There are few more interesting studies than the origin of the names of localities, and, excepting "Statesville," there is no place the reason for the name of which has puzzled and interested us more than "Gap Civil," Alleghany county—the original county seat of Alleghany if we are not mistaken. Most unexpectedly we find in the Alleghany Star, of last week, the explanation of why "Gap Civil" is so called, and the explanation is so very unique as to give zest to all future researches along this line. Gap Civil is two miles from Sparta, the present county seat of Alleghany. It is situated in a gap between two large mountains, and, the Star tells us, was at one time the muster ground for the southern portion of Ashe and the voting precinct for all the lower part of Ashe before Alleghany was cut off from it. The first settler, our contemporary says, had a store and dwelling at the gap and entertained those who attended the musters and elections with the best of whiskey and brandy. As a result of his hospitality there were many tests of manhood among the assembled sovereigns—sometimes as many as a dozen fights were going on at the same time; but no pistol, knife or other weapon was ever used, the fighting was fair, and hence the name of the place was called "Gap Civil."

This is the most exquisite piece of drollery we ever read, and there is enough parallelism to suggest Scott's account in "Ivanhoe" of a certain delightful tournament in which the casualties were so slight—only fifteen or twenty having been killed and a like number maimed for life—that the occurrence never after referred to as "the gentle and joyous passage of arms at Ashby."

REFERRING to the words of a good Methodist brother who wrote the CHRONICLE that "our dependence is: first, in God; second, in Democracy; and third, in Zeb Vance," the Salisbury Herald says:

That preacher is a sensible man, and he totes a level head set square in the right place. He has enunciated some mighty sound doctrine, and the man who follows it, be he Methodist or not, will never "fall from grace."

We heartily endorse the STATE CHRONICLE. Any newspaper that will sacrifice its convictions of right and pander to the views of self-seeking demagogues for the purpose of gaining subscribers is not worthy of the patronage of respectable people.—Monroe Enquirer.

I HAVE no desire to see a paid railroad attorney (Chas. Price) made Chief Justice of North Carolina in place of the pure and incorruptible MERRIMON.—E. C. BEDDINGFIELD in State Convention of Democratic Clubs.

IT IS DISHONORABLE.

(Maxton Union.)

It sounds very Democratic (?) to hear a man talking to a Republican and telling said R—that the prospects are bright for our success after he, the said man, has been in a Democratic convention and tried to nominate certain men. A good Democrat won't talk any such stuff to a Republican, white or black, and one that does has no business in a Democratic convention.

MR. EWART'S OPINION

Of Professor Alexander McIver and the Other Republicans of North Carolina and the South.

In Mr. Ewart's speech in the House in opposition to the Force bill, after speaking of the losses suffered by the South on account of the war, he thus refers to his party in this State and the South, and compares the prosperity of the South under Democratic rule with the outrages and misrule of the Republicans:

"On the heels of this fearful loss by war and destruction of values, came political misrule and degradation against which it seemed almost hopeless to strive. 'The State governments fell into the hands of the most disreputable gang of thieves and plunderers that ever disgraced a nation, and the very name of Republicanism became a stench in the nostrils of all honest men. By bloodshed, violence and intimidation these governments were wrested from the thieves and plunderers, and to-day without exception are held by the Democratic party. In spite of this long era of misrule, and all the evils of reconstruction, the South has prospered as never a section prospered before. Go South now, and your journey will be through a continuous and unbroken strain of the music of progress, the whirr of the spindle, the buzz of the saw, the roar of the furnace and the throb of the locomotive.'"

How would Rev. D. P. MEACAM, Radical candidate for the Senate, like to see in print that filthy letter which he wrote to Mr. CURTIS, who lives four miles and a half West of Raleigh? That letter was written when both of them had exhibits of honey and bees at the State Fair.

POLITICAL GOSSIP.

The Republicans of the Third Congressional district have nominated Geo. C. Seurlock (col.) for Congress. "We compose the Republican party" truly say the negroes.

The Republican paper at Brevard, after hearing Mr. Crawford and Mr. Moody at that place, suggested that it "hoped Mr. Ewart would meet Mr. Crawford next time." Crawford has them on the run.

Mr. D. N. Burrow, one of the Radical nominees for the House in Randolph county, is wiser than the others on the ticket. He declines to run. After November the others will burrow and wish they had followed his example earlier.

The Democratic county convention of Halifax county endorsed the compromise ticket agreed upon by the Alliance and the Executive Committee of two parties. The following were nominated: W. E. Bowers for the Senate; W. H. Hall, recommended by the Alliance and A. H. Hill, for the House; B. I. Alsbrook, Sheriff; W. T. Parker, Treasurer; leaving Register of Deeds, Clerk of the Superior court, Coroner, and Surveyor to be nominated by the Republicans.

—AND—

Dress Trimmings.

W. H. & R. S. TUCKER & CO.

We are positive that the display in these three departments has never been excelled by any of our previous efforts.

SILKS.

The most popular weaves this season will be Bengalines, Faille Francaise, and Eppinglines. These we show in Blacks, as well as all the fashionable Autumn shades.

DRESS TEXTURES.

The popularity of the new "Rough" faced materials is now asserted; and, combined with Velvet and Silk and Passementaire, are capable of the most surprising effects.

DRESS TRIMMINGS.

Our showing of these important accessories to dress goods is simply wonderful. It is quite difficult here to give anything like a comprehensive idea of what we have; but among the latest things brought out are the Turquoise effects, Velvet and Tinsel Combinations, &c.

DISSOLUTION OF CO-PARTNERSHIP.

I hereby announce that I have this day sold my interest in the business of the late firm of Hardin & Pescud, to Messrs. Thomas Pescud and T. L. Eberhardt, who will continue the business under the name and style of Eberhardt & Pescud. All claims against Hardin & Pescud will be paid by Eberhardt & Pescud, who will also collect all accounts due said former firm.

In taking leave of my old friends and customers, I beg to express to them my grateful appreciation of the steady and generous support they have given me for the past thirteen years. I trust they will be equally kind to my successors, whom I cordially recommend to all my friends as eminently worthy of confidence and support.
E. J. HARDIN.
SEPTEMBER 1, 1890.

Referring to the above notice, we respectfully announce that we have this day formed a copartnership for the transaction of a general grocery and provision business as the successors of Messrs. Hardin & Pescud.

With increased facilities for doing business, and an experience (as to one of the partners) of twelve years in this branch of trade, we hope to merit a continuance of the generous patronage extended to the late firm, and to increase it, if an increased stock, low prices and close attention to the wants of our customers will accomplish that result.
E. J. HARDIN & PESCUD,

Valuable Real Estate.

I have some of the most desirable property in the growing town of Oxford, N. C., for sale. On my list are gilt-edge lots in the very heart of the town. Also seventy acres, including a handsome new residence, partly in the town and partly in the suburbs—price $30,000. This seventy acres could be divided into a great many beautiful building lots, and is worthy the attention of capitalists as an investment. Heaven is a growing town and is located in a favored-blest part of the world.
